Peekskill Man Charged with Murder in Daytime Shooting

By Rick Pezzullo

An 18-year-old Peekskill resident was charged Friday with murdering a Bronx man in July in the area of 1245 Park Street.

Following a three-week investigation, Peekskill Police arrested Demetrius Bogan and charged him with fatally shooting Khalil Lyons, 22, on July 13 at approximately 2:30 p.m.

According to Police Chief Don Halmy, Peekskill Police responded to the area of 1245 Park Street for a report of shots fired. Upon arrival, officers discovered Lyons lying on the ground with what proved to be a single, fatal gunshot wound to the chest. A male suspect was reported to have been observed fleeing the scene after arguing with the victim.

Cortlandt Man Pleads Guilty to Harassing Lakeland Schools Super

By Anna Young

A Cortlandt man who was arrested for leaving Lakeland Superintendent of Schools Dr. George Stone more than two dozen voicemails pleaded guilty to harassment and was slapped with an order of protection last week.

Anthony Cassone, 55, appeared before Hon. Gary Raniolo in Yorktown Justice Court last Thursday where he was issued an order of protection prohibiting him from contacting or meeting with Stone for two years.

Cassone, who was sporting a shirt stating, “Child predators and people who cover for child predators are scum pure scum” has alleged for several months that Lakeland School District officials are protecting Walter Panas High School teacher Ryan Dobson, who he claimed engaged in inappropriate conduct with female students.

“To cover it up makes you sick,” said Cassone, who has also protested outside the Lakeland administration building and appeared at Board of Education meetings since November. “It’s a cover up, it’s a big cover up. I want justice.”

Cassone was served with

Rainstorms Cause Major Damage
to St. Columbanus Church

By Rick Pezzullo

The torrential rain that swept through the area Friday wreaked havoc on St. Columbanus Church in Cortlandt, causing major damage to Dillon Hall and other parts of the 53-year-old structure.

Pastor Rev. Francis Samoylo said Monday the major source of the problem was drainage pipes on the roof that came apart during the storm that led to flooding in the choir loft and some areas of the church. Sunday services were held as scheduled, though.

But Dillon Hall took the brunt of the gushing water, as ceiling tiles fell and lights were hanging down. Asbestos abatement will be required and the facility, which is used for Bingo, meetings, Friday playgroups and other functions, will be unusable for a few weeks, possibly a few months, according to Samoylo.

While the cost of the repairs and cleanup will be tens of thousands of dollars, Samoylo said out-of-pocket expenses for the church will only be $2,500 for the insurance deductible and approximately $900 for plumbing work.

“Fortunately, thank God for the insurance,” Samoylo said, adding “a silver lining” from the flooding is Dillon Hall will be refurbished.

Peripheral Artery Disease –
Your Limbs, Your Life
Discover lifesaving treatment options...

Q: What is Peripheral Artery Disease (PAD) and why does it occur?
A: PAD is when plaque deposits of fat, cholesterol, and other substances build up in the walls of your arteries. Over time, these deposits can cause atherosclerosis, a narrowing or complete blockage of the arteries. This can lead to a heart attack or stroke. As the population ages, PAD is more prevalent, advising an annual screening for PAD for everyone over the age of 70.

Q: How can I reduce my risk? Or, if I’m diagnosed – How can I manage symptoms?
A: Get the help you need to stop smoking. This is a risk factor you can control. By damaging your blood vessels, the chemicals in cigarettes increase your risk for PAD by four times, according to the National Institutes of Health. Also, exercise as regularly as possible, and stick to a diet rich in fruits, vegetables and legumes, and limit meat.

Q: Behavior modification isn’t working for me. What are my options?
A: If you’ve been diagnosed with PAD and your symptoms can’t be managed through behavior modification alone, you have options. At Northern Westchester Hospital, we use balloon angioplasty, stent placement and atherectomy procedures to treat PAD symptoms. These techniques help keep the blood flowing in the arteries of the lower limbs and are often done without hospital stays. You’ll resume daily activities within a day or less. For severely blocked arteries, bypass surgery lets us bypass severely blocked blood vessels. This often requires a three-to-five-day hospital stay and rehabilitation.
Local Tax Preparer Indicted Again for State Tax Fraud

By Rick Pezzullo

A Yorktown man was charged last week in an eight-count indictment with tax fraud and related crimes following an investigation by the New York State Department of Taxation and the Westchester County District Attorney’s Office.

Steve Sabba, 60, and his company TaxPro Financial Network, Inc. were arraigned July 30 in Westchester County Court before Judge Anne Minihan on eight separate felony charges, including scheme to defraud in the first degree, criminal tax fraud and identity theft.

“The flagrant nature of the scheme alleged in this indictment—a deliberate attempt to conceal income and use the stolen identities of unsuspecting clients for personal gain—is especially disturbing given the defendant’s previous conviction for tax fraud,” said Acting New York State Commissioner of Taxation and Finance Nonie Manion.

“Anyone who steals money from the State of New York, steals money from all of us,” said Westchester County District Attorney Anthony Scarpino, Jr. “We are proud of our collaboration with New York State Department of Taxation and Finance in bringing to light this serious ongoing tax fraud and we will prosecute the perpetrator to the fullest to see justice done for the residents of Westchester and New York State.”

The indictment alleges that Sabba defrauded New York State from February 2012 to March 2018 by engaging “in a scheme constituting a systematic ongoing course of conduct.” Sabba sold a tax preparation business in 2009. Sabba allegedly failed to have the corporation, which received installment payments from that sale, report the income in the corresponding years. In addition, he concealed taxable income paid to him by clients and stole personal identifying information from others to obtain credit cards and charge his personal expenses to those cards. He used corporate accounts to pay the bills on the fraudulent cards. In this way, Sabba did not report to the authorities the income he used to pay those bills and did not pay taxes on that income, thereby falsifying his own tax return, according to the indictment. Sabba was previously convicted of tax fraud. In 2009, he pleaded guilty to filing a false state personal income tax return. As part of that agreement, Sabba agreed to dissolve his business, TaxPro Financial Network, Inc. and no longer electronically file tax returns under personal identification numbers that he previously obtained or used.

Sabba is next scheduled to appear in Westchester County Court August 21. The Westchester County District Attorney’s Office Investigations Division Economic Crimes Bureau is prosecuting the case.

Teen a Young Hero by Promoting Math, Science to Children

By Martin Wilbur

Kunal Mohindra’s love of math and science has driven him to bring fun, STEM-related activities and promote his favorite subject to younger children throughout his community.

Now, the 14-year-old, who is entering his sophomore year at Yorktown High School next month, is part of a select group of youngsters throughout the United States who will be honored this Thursday, August 9 by the National Liberty Museum in Philadelphia.

Mohindra was recently named one of 14 recipients of the museum’s annual Young Heroes Award. It is given to students in grades K-12 who have shown interest in science pursuits in his home community, he said.

And Mohindra, who has been a long-time Boy Scout who hopes to make the track team this year, has done a lot in recent years. Dismayed that there hasn’t been more emphasis on math and science in his home community, he developed a program called Code Conference in their community each year to widen his interest of math and science.

He hopes to introduce it in additional libraries and schools throughout the area.

Mohindra will be honored by the National Liberty Museum in Philadelphia this week as one of its Young Heroes for bringing a STEM-related program for children to the John C. Hart Memorial Library, among other initiatives.

He hopes to introduce it in additional libraries and schools throughout the area.

Mohindra said he hopes to continue his love of STEM education to others.

On Thursday, there will be an awards ceremony at the museum and one of the honorees will be awarded a $2,500 TD Bank is sponsoring this year’s competition.

Mohindra said he hopes to continue to widen his interest of math and science when he goes to college and would perhaps to like to teach - as well as bringing his love of STEM education to others.

Thousands Get Down and Dirty for a Good Cause in Mahopac

By Anna Young

Thousands of children and families were covered in mud on Saturday as they spent the day raising money for pediatric cancer research during the sixth annual Muddy puddles Project Mess Fest celebration.

Despite a heavy rainstorm kicking off the five-hour event, several thousand families throughout the tristate area flooded Kiwi Country Day Camp in Mahopac to honor and remember children who have either been diagnosed with cancer or lost their battle to the disease. Event coordinator Ali Stern said parents and kids are encouraged to be carefree in honor of those who can't.

"Today we throw food, jump in the mud, get messy and have fun," Stern said. "It's a wonderful feeling to see people want to honor these kids."

With many activities offered, including a ziplining course, a food fight station, splatter paint, pie tossing, obstacle course, slip-n-slide, swimming, pony rides, magic shows and much more, the pinnacle portion of the day came when Muddy Puddles Project founders Louis and Cindy Campbell took a dive into the event's giant mud pit.

"There are a lot of disabled children, children with cancer, and children who otherwise can't jump in muddy puddles or do the things that other kids and their parents take for granted," Cindy Campbell said. "This is a metaphor to just jump in and take chances and embrace life."

The Campbell's founded the Muddy Puddles Project after their five-year-old son, Ty, lost his battle to brain cancer in 2012. While Ty fought a gallant three-year battle against the disease, he dreamed of jumping in a muddy puddle when he was cured, resembling what his cartoon hero Peppa Pig did on television.

While Ty never got the chance to jump in that muddy puddle, the Mess Fest was created in his memory to celebrate childhood, Stern said.

"It's our favorite day of the year," Campbell said. "I hope it never ends and people continue to come out and understand the cause and raise money."

With funds generated from the event benefit the Ty Louis Campbell Foundation, Stern hopes the August 4 event raised close to $100,000. The nonprofit organization funds innovative research and clinical trials specifically geared toward the treatment of the most aggressive and deadly childhood cancers to improve long-term survival rates and minimize side-effects.

They also aim to help care for families with children undergoing treatment by providing financial assistance and uplifting experiences.

Somers resident Antigona Gjini attended the event with her family for the first time after friends spoke highly of the Ty Louis Campbell Foundation. You never know what could happen and you need to support and help in any way possible, she said.

"I think showing up shows that you care about people," said 11-year-old Armonk resident Nikolet Vataj, who recently lost a friend to cancer. "It probably means a lot to the parents of those children."

While the event is no stranger to rain, Stern believes Ty looks down on his family every year making sure the puddles are extra muddy for all to enjoy.

"It has rained the morning of this event ever year and then it clears up," Stern said. "I truly believe Ty is watching us and making sure this a great day."

Children and adults enjoyed jumping in the mud at Kiwi Country Day Camp.

Enhanced Communication Sought to Better Protect Schools

By Anna Young

With school threats becoming more frequent, members of the Westchester District Attorney's Office met with more than two dozen police officers and school resource officers last week to enhance communication that will better protect school communities.

During the first-ever School Resource Officer Summit, held at the Westchester Intelligence Center (WIC) in White Plains, officers from more than a dozen police departments partnered with county officials to help combat threats on social media and discuss other safety concerns.

District Attorney Anthony Scarpino said the goal of the summit was to form a centralized network of information sharing that connects that more than 40 school districts and law enforcement agencies within the county. School safety is at the top of our agenda now, he said.

"These are very difficult times for school districts," Scarpino said at the August 2 conference. "It is at the top of the county executive and the district attorney's agenda because we feel it's important that our students feel safe when they go to school as much as humanly possible."

Andrew Ludlum, acting executive director of the WIC, said creating an information sharing grid is essential to ensuring that anyone who is responsible for school safety receives the same training in a tight and effective communications network.

"What we do here is to steer to the network of information and intelligence which will help them do their jobs better and that can touch on social media threats, actual threats of violence, and our goal here is to be primarily engaged in the prevention stage," Ludlum said.

Along with social media threats, the county's intelligence staff also tracks signs of bullying, internet threats, social media issues, hate crimes, and triggers that indicate a student in crisis.

Scarpino added that school resource officers are a valuable link to providing information and developing trust within their districts to combat potential threats.

"There is no silver bullet to this problem, but you are one of the bullets that we use," Scarpino told officers. "We know that if we work together that the benefits will be significant to all of us."

Larchmont Det. Lisa Pompilio, a school resource officer for the Mamaroneck School District, agreed that resource officers have become an asset to the students, parents, and school and law enforcement officials. She said that information sharing is vital to bridging the gap between the school districts and police department.

"Now as SROs come into play more often, it's nice to have a group of people where we can reach out to, make some phone calls to, run things across," Pompilio said.

While officials plan to meet with law enforcement four or five times a year, Scarpino said his office is also developing a school safety commission. The group will consist of law enforcement, school administrators, PTA members and mental health professionals to develop best practices in security.

"We're trying to attack this from as many fronts as we possibly can and try to do the best we can," Scarpino said. "Our main responsibility is to ensure that Westchester is the safest community that we can make it and the healthies community that we can make it and maintain that."
Kesten Joins Child Victims Act Supporter in Urging for Bill's Passage

By Anna Young

Democratic Senate candidate Robert Kesten and child abuse survivor Gary Greenberg stood in solidarity last week blasting state officials for their refusal to support the Child Victims Act.

The legislation, which would help child sex abuse survivors seek justice as adults, has been approved in the Democratic-controlled Assembly several times with bipartisan support, including earlier this year; however, it has never come to the Senate floor for a vote.

Greenberg, an outspoken child sex abuse survivor who helped craft the legislation, said Senate Republicans have routinely blocked the bill from being voted on by keeping it in committee year after year.

“One hundred and fifty kids are being abused in the state today and it’s disgusting. The Republican Party is more interested in themselves,” Greenberg said. “It’s not a political issue but Republicans in this state have made it a political issue and if they don’t vote on it the only thing we can do is replace the ones who won’t vote.”

His frustration prompted Greenberg to create a political action committee two years ago to push for passage of the bill. Democratic Senate candidate Robert Kesten, right, appears last week with Greenberg, who helped craft the Child Victims Act. The legislation has passed the Assembly but has yet to come up for a vote in the Senate.

His committee endorses candidates who support the measure in hopes that the Democrats win control of the chamber in November.

During a gathering at the BeanRunner Café in Peekskill, Greenberg announced his support for Kesten in the 40th state Senate District Democratic primary over former county Legislator Peter Harckham. For months, Kesten has urged officials to hold a special session to approve the legislation.

“If we don’t take care of people we’re not really doing the job that government was intended to do,” Kesten said.

The proposed bill eliminates the statute of limitations for prosecuting child sexual abuse crimes and filing civil lawsuits for damages against individuals, public and private institutions. The bill would allow for lawsuits to be filed until the victim is 50 years old. Currently, if a child is sexually abused, they have until the age of 23 to seek justice.

The proposed bill also allows for a one-year window for a victim to file a civil claim against their alleged abuser regardless of age, Greenberg said.

Greenberg criticized state Senate Majority Leader Minority Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins (R-Yorktown) for failing to push for a vote after sharing his support for the bill two years ago.

“Shame on him,” Greenberg said. “He has done nothing to see that the Child Victims Act was passed.”

Greenberg also slammed Gov. Andrew Cuomo for not using his influence to bring lawmakers back into session to vote on the law. Greenberg added that he contributed $15,000 to Cuomo’s campaign last year after promises were made the law would reach the floor for a vote.

“Well, he has done is he’s supported Republicans with the Independent Democratic Conference to allow the Republicans to stay in the majority and every year the Republican Party have kept the Child Victims Act in committee,” Greenberg said. “He has a lot of power and he refuses to use it because it doesn’t serve his best interests. This governor for the last eight years has only given us lip service.”

Kesten stressed the importance of voting in the Nov. 6 election to ensure human rights issues take priority at the legislative level. He added that money and politics have prevented the Child Victims Act from moving forward. It’s a problem only the voters can change, he said.

“It should be a human issue and money gets in the way,” Kesten said. “This is about money and power and it’s really not about anything else and that’s the problem with our system, and as long as we have this unlimited amount of money being poured into a system that teeters in the wrong way, that’s a huge problem we’ll have to address.”

Washington Politics Playing Out in Yorktown

To the Editor,

I don’t know if Yorktown should be shocked or if voters in last November’s election should just say “I told you so?” Rumors of conflict of interest have been floating around certain politicians for years. A ethics complaint has been filed that a former politician has been hired by the very same developers for their personal political advantage. The legalities of this are questionable but I am certain that it’s both unethical and a violation of the public trust. Yorktown’s Board of Ethics and Westchester County Government watch dog agencies should review this matter and dig a little deeper to see if there are more back-room political deals that have yet to be exposed. It’s a little bit of what’s wrong with Washington D.C. politics playing out right here in Yorktown.

ROBERT JEFFREYS
Yorktown

When neo-Nazis paraded through the streets of Charlottesville, VA, leaving riot and death in their wake, they were condemned by politicians of every stripe. But Mr. Murphy remained conspicuously silent.

When small children were ripped from their parents’ arms at our southern border and unceremoniously dispatched here to Westchester, did Mr. Murphy join the vast chorus of officials protesting these inhuman acts? He most certainly did not.

One of the most fundamental human rights in our country is the right to vote. But did Mr. Murphy support the package of legislation, passed by the Assembly, to make voting easier and to foster greater participation? Never. He turned his back on these as well.

In contrast, he introduced legislation requiring photo IDs at the polls, ostensibly to prevent the frauds which almost never occur, but whose real intent was to depress the turnout of minorities, poor people, and young voters, who he must, rightfully, feel are not among his strongest supporters.

One can only conclude that Mr. Murphy, faced with an extraordinary challenge for his seat in November, instructed one of his staff members to prepare that letter full of love, tolerance, and praise for the citizens of our village in nothing less than a cynical attempt to swing voters into his camp.

If Mr. Murphy really cared about the people of Croton, he would venture down here during this long legislative recess and actually meet with his constituents to discuss his record and his plans for the future, and to answer their questions. But that has never occurred here or anywhere else in his district in living memory.

So, Mr. Murphy, spare us your words of praise. We know you’re not sincere. We see you for what you truly are. We in Croton are doing just fine without you.

Sincerely,

JOEL E. GINGOLD

It isn’t Socialism, It’s Our Government’s Support of Capitalism

To the Editor,

It isn’t socialism, it’s our government’s support of capitalism that has made our economy the greatest in the world. All the government expenditures on infrastructure, education, technology, etc. aids and abets our capitalistic republic. Granted we have a way to go towards perfection. A good way to that is to provide a good education for all our children. Our education systems, kindergarten thru college, have failed our children, and this is especially true for inner city children.

You must realize that it isn’t criminal to be rich. We all would like to be financially secure, and nowhere in the world is there a better chance than in the capitalistic USA.

HV Expo in Peekskill Cancelled

The Fourth Annual Hudson Valley Exposition scheduled for Saturday at Riverfront Green in Peekskill was cancelled due to flooding. Deb Milone, Executive Director of the Hudson Valley Gateway Chamber of Commerce, the organization heading the event, issued a statement concerning the circumstances that led to it being shelved.

"Due to the tremendous amount of overnight rain and significant flooding, the City of Peekskill has declared the Riverfront Green Park unusable. Therefore, in working in cooperation with the City, we have no choice but to make the difficult decision to cancel today’s Hudson Valley Exposition,” Milone said. “We will be in touch with further details in regards to this cancellation early next week. We appreciate your support and understanding and apologize for any inconvenience.”
When you hear the term The Asphalt Jungle, the title of a 1950 film noir based on the novel of the same name by W. R. Burnett, you probably think of underworld activities in the city, but in the suburbs, the words could very well describe the constant battle of maintaining our town roads.

And the surprisingly bad condition of many of our roads today affects the perception of our towns and neighborhoods, as well as the perceived value of our homes.

When I owned a single-family home, it was the first home as one entered my street. And I was keenly aware at one point that it had not been paved in at least 25 years while I was living there. I became very sensitive to this issue when one buyer prospect asked, “Why does your street look so bad?”

However, I remember well when one morning I woke to the sound of equipment operating in the street below my window, and I thought, oh, no, what the heck is happening now? But I rejoiced when, ‘lo and behold, I spied through the window, and I thought, oh, no, what the ment operating in the street below my morning I woke to the sound of equipment operating in the street below my window, and I thought, oh, no, what the heck is happening now? But I rejoiced when, ‘lo and behold, I spied through the window, and I thought, oh, no, what the self here? Why was it such a long time between pavings? I asked him. He replied that because of tightened budgets, roads which had been on a 10-year cycle for re-paving had been extended to a 20-year cycle.” I guess somehow my street got lost in the shuffle because I could personally testify to the fact that its life far surpassed even the extended cycle.

When I was a child, I traveled with my older sister and my brother-in-law when I moved to my town more than 40 years ago, the main road, then cared for by the county, was still concrete, installed in sections with cracks in between that produced a large, consistent sound as you rode over them. Soon after our arrival, it too was covered with smooth asphalt that looked and rode much better.

You may wonder about the composition of an asphalt mix. Actually liquid asphalt is the heavy black material that is left from crude oil after the other products like gasoline and motor oil are refined from it. Paving asphalt is composed of six percent liquid asphalt, mixed with sand and stone.

The materials are heated to about 300 degrees while mixed, dumped into a very long “slow boy” truck which then delivers the paving material to the site. The advantage of the large “slow boy” is that it features a conveyor which pushes the mix out on to the road without having to be lifted and dumped.”

After the asphalt is spread evenly along the road, a roller which operates with water cascading over its surface, flattens and compresses the mix, with the water keeping it from sticking to the drum.

Because of that procedure, my street was transformed from the ugliest to the nicest looking in town. The downside was that it made my abutting landscaping look a little overgrown, so I had to catch up with the Joneses and prune everything back so that it matched the sleeker look of the street.

There was always something to keep me busy outside, and this was a small price to pay to guard against the possibility of my stumbling into a pothole in front of my house.

Dr. David Mauricio officially took over the reins as Superintendent of Schools in the Peekskill School District on July 1, and he hit the ground running.

Dr. Mauricio, who was selected by the Board of Education on April 6 after an extensive nationwide search, has a 90-day entry plan to immerse himself into the district, meet key stakeholders in the community and ensure schools and faculty are ready to greet students when they return to school in September.

“I am very excited to join the Peekskill community,” Dr. Mauricio said when he was appointed. “During the interview process with the Board, staff and community leaders, it was clear that Peekskill is poised for greatness. I was extremely impressed with the community’s diversity; the school board’s commitment to the children, families and a focus on excellence; and the many wonderful things taking place in the district and the city.”

Dr. Mauricio was born in New York City. He was raised by his mother and father, both of whom are Latinos. His father was born in the Dominican Republic to a large family. His mother was born in Puerto Rico. While his home was not financially wealthy, Dr. Mauricio’s life was rich in love, guidance, religion, a sense of family and a strong work ethic. His parents taught him to give to others and this virtue was evident in how the family lived. These realities and perspectives drove Dr. Mauricio to work hard in order to be successful in life. Many mentors and caring adults have assisted him throughout his entire life, leading him to become the person he is today.

He graduated from the New York City Public School system. He pursued his post-secondary education in Buffalo where he received the following degrees: BS in Ed., Special Education & Elementary Education from S.U.N.Y. College at Buffalo; MS in Ed., Bilingual Special Education from S.U.N.Y. College at Buffalo; Certificate of Advanced Study, School Administrator and Supervisor from S.U.N.Y. College at Buffalo; and Ed.D. in Educational Leadership and Policy from the University at Buffalo.

Dr. Mauricio began working in education in 1993 and has spent more than 24 years serving Buffalo’s students in the following capacities: Special Education Teacher (Monolingual and Bilingual) at School #33; Educational Specialist, Committee on Special Education (CSE), Director and Supervisor of Special Education, Principal of Lorraine Elementary School, Principal of Bennett High School, Community Superintendent and most currently in his position as Chief of Strategic Alignment and Innovation.

He is also extremely committed to the betterment of the communities he works with, and has received numerous community awards and recognitions for his efforts and achievements including, but not limited to the following: the Outstanding Leadership Award for Men of Integrity from Utopia Euphoria, LLC, the Proud Latino Award from Hispanics United of Buffalo, the Career and Technical Educator’s Guild Award and the U.S. Army Reserve HHID 2nd Brigade, 98th Division Solidor of the Year Award.

In addition, Dr. Mauricio sits on a number of boards and committees, including Junior Achievement of Western New York, Parent Network of Western New York and the Westside Latino Task-force. He is also the President, Executive Board Member and Regional Delegate of the New York State Association of Bilingual Education, and a founding member of the New York State Association of Latino Administrators and Superintendents.

Dr. Mauricio, husband to Kimberly and father to a son and daughter, replaced Dr. Mary Keenan Foster, who returned to her previous position as Assistant Superintendent for Elementary Education.

Renegades Snap Losing Streak

By Andy Jacobs

Up until last week, the Hudson Valley Renegades had the best record in the New York-Penn League. But a season-high five-game losing streak knocked the ‘Gades from their lofty perch.

Late Sunday afternoon, Hudson Valley finally returned to its winning ways, overcoming a four-run deficit to defeat the Brooklyn Cyclones 6-5 at Dutchess Stadium. The Renegades rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning, winning in walk-off fashion as Cyclone relief pitcher Yeudy Colon was called for a balk, sending home Allen Smoot from third base with the decisive run.

The Cyclones, sparked by two-run homers off the bats of Chase Chambers and Carlos Cortes, built a 5-1 lead after four and a half innings. The Renegades answered with three runs in the bottom of the fifth, closing to within a run of Brooklyn on Adrian Rondon’s two-out RBI single to center field.

In the decisive ninth inning, the first two Renegade batters were retired before Rondon walked and Smoot singled. Marvin Malone then followed with a run-scoring single to tie the game, setting the stage for the balk call that provided the Renegades with their 29th victory in 48 games this season.
